Comments:

I have spent a significant amount of time over the course of my life in and around the Custer Gallatin Forest. I have always marveled at the few bison I've seen, and, in recent years become increasingly concerned about the threats to bison habitat from the growing human presence in and adjoining the forest lands. It is my hope that the legacy and value of bison will be honored by allocating as much land as possible for the population to live in and the impediments to their migrations such as fences will be minimized.
