I vote to keep it the same. It's our land so how can we just close it to certain users? In the winter big game animals migrate out of the snow to get food. No more wilderness areas. Share the trails and build more. More people needs more trails. Dirtbikes do alot to help maintain trails by riding them. Horses destroy trails and dirtbikes riding those trails help to smooth them back out. We all need each other to keep the trails the best, if you take one user out it could be really detrimental. The fires growing up in Montana were nothing, and now that's all that happens every year and its because of changes with logging and other closers that were made years ago that changed everything to how it is now. Fires every year!!! Trail that were closed need to be open to all users it balances the forest. My family has used these forests for generations and will to for many more. Me and my dirtbiking friends are stewards of the trail, and you must respect the mountains or they will do stuff like giant fires to change us.
