I cannot claim to know exactly what you are proposing. However, I do understand that you are considering allowing access to a portion of the area for the use of recreational vehicles, horses and people. The problem is allowing a little encroachment will bring a lot of encroachment. Wildlife seems to have less and less wilderness for them to inhabit and you are proposing to take some away. With the incursion of loud vehicles, that will narrow their safe area even more. It is time to let wildlife live in peace and continue to be wild. Do not sacrifice even one inch of their land.

However, if you are determined to chop off a part of their homeland, I understand plan D is preferable.
