Comments:

We have been negligent in our duty to give our children a natural heritage that is equal to or better than what we had as kids. We now have the globe warming at alarming rates; a steep decline in fish, animal, and insect populations around the globe; and natural areas around the globe are decreasing in size and biodiversity. We are not taking the measures that we need to take to reverse these trends, either.

We need to preserve what natural areas that we have left. We need to protect and even expand places like Custer Gallatin Forest now before it is too late. We need to do everything that we can to reverse the damage that we have wrought. These aren't just some feel-good ideas that have no meaning. Taking such steps are necessary for the sustainability of human civilization.

Everything that we have ultimately comes from nature and it's high time that we respect that.
