I live near Huntly, Montana and, because of it's close proximity, I make frequent trips to the Pryor mountains primarily because of my interest in photography. I have made several trips to the area with other member of the Billings Camera club. Back in the 1990s I conducted a [illegible] as a seasonal archaeologist for the Custer National Forest so I have an interest in the prehistory of the Pryors as well. My surveys at that time were at several areas proposed for logging because of windfall damage. Because of the cultural significance of the Pryors to native american groups and its unique, rugged beauty, I would like to see this area managed under alternative D. Because I have not seen a significant [illegible], I don't feel Alternative D could impact other uses.
